

Cooper Knoll

A prescribed burn of 500 acres will be conducted in the Cooper Knoll area starting in the spring or fall of 2005. Cooper Knoll is located 1 mile south east of Panguitch Lake. The objectives of the prescribed burn are to reduce hazardous fuels near communities at risk, reintroduce fire to a fire dependent ecosystem, and to sustain a diverse forested ecosystem dominated more by mountain brush with grass with a more historic distribution of pinyon juniper and ponderosa pine. An additional 500 acres will be treated over the next few years.
